Applicant Qualifications

The Applicant Qualifications section should be an interesting, integrated, well written, and proofread essay that is no more than five single spaced pages, double spaced between paragraphs, written in a 12 point, sans-serif font. The essay must:

- Describe what your relevant studies have been and how they conform to the Greenspan Scholarship criteria of advancing the SAR principles (20 points max);
- Explain how you became interested in the field(s) of education chosen and why this/those field(s) were selected (30 points max); and
- Explain how you plan to use your education in the chosen field(s) to advance American Government; American History; Political Science; Law and Jurisprudence; Preservation of Archives, Documents, Historic Buildings, Monuments or Places; or a similarly focused multi-disciplinary area. Explain what goals you hope to achieve by using your education and how you plan to achieve them. (40 points max).

These three topics may be addressed in any order that clearly identifies them and makes sense within the integrated structure of your essay.
